10:00 – 11:00am

Panel Session 1: “Hide and Seek” – Uncovering Counterfeit Trade Routes and Stopping the Flow of Fakes

Counterfeiters employ constantly evolving tactics to escape detection and find new distribution channels for their illegal products. This panel will examine both existing and emerging routes for illicit trade, while highlighting the various methods used by counterfeiters to get their goods to market. Officials and brands from across the region, will discuss the challenges they face in identifying and interdicting illegal shipments.

11:00 – 11:30am

Networking Break & Exhibit Viewing

11:30am – 12:30pm

Panel Session 2: Passing Through – Enforcement Against Fakes In-Transit and in Free Trade Zones

Counterfeit goods typically pass through many jurisdictions on their way from manufacturers to end consumers. This panel will focus on effective enforcement strategies and collaboration across borders to remove counterfeit goods from the distribution chain before they reach their final destination. Speakers will discuss their approach to dealing with fake goods in-transit and in free trade zones that may be exploited to facilitate the production and distribution of fakes, offering lessons learned from successful cases.

12:30 – 1:30pm

Panel Sessions 3: “Fakes to Die For...” – Counterfeits and Consumers’ Health and Safety (Part I): Footwear and Apparel, Luxury, Electronics

Substandard materials, toxic dyes, faulty wiring, and other shoddy components abound in fakes. This session will explore how rights-holders and governments can work together to better educate consumers the health and safety risks inherent in counterfeit items such as footwear, apparel, and electronics. Speakers will also address what deterrent measures are effective in enforcing against fakes from these product sectors.

Panel Session 4: Counterfeits and Consumers' Health and Safety (Part II): F&B, Cosmetics, and Pharma

Fake food, drugs and cosmetics pose serious, and sometimes fatal, health implications for consumers. Private industry and government speakers will discuss how consumers are educated about these dangerous items. Panelists will also discuss what government intervention and resources are needed to make an even more significant impact on this problem.

1:00 – 2:00pm

Lunch

2:00 – 3:15pm

Panel Session 5: Large Volume Seizures: A thing of the past?

While seizures of fakes via small packages have increased across the globe with the rise of e-commerce, targeting large-scale imports of counterfeits via ocean cargo remains an important part of component of enforcement regimes. Speakers will discuss how public/private cooperation has led to successful seizures of massive quantities of fakes, and what lessons can be learned from them.

3:15 – 3:45pm
